

BE LUCKY, BE A CHANGEMAKER!

LUCKYTRIMMER seeks artists that use their creativity to affect positive social change!

What is the LUCKY CHANGEMAKER grant for?

- Socially engaged projects in which art is a catalyst for social change. All disciplines are eligible if they are engaged with physicality, movement and performance (including visual arts, literary arts, dance, theatre, film/video, music, performance-based arts, interdisciplinary/hybrid arts).
- Projects that feature artists who engage socially underprivileged community members who would normally not have access to culture as equal partners.
- Creative process: We value the process as much as the product. Relationship building is a key goal and projects do not have to automatically result in producing an exhibition or a theatre production. Projects may, but are NOT required to, result in a physical artwork.
- Workshops, training, studio practice, if they directly relate to achieving outcomes of a community-based project.

LUCKYTRIMMER is launching a brand new initiative supporting socially engaged artistic projects that embody the LUCKY spirit!

We're on the hunt for daring new projects that incorporate physicality, movement or performance in an effort to create meaningful change in your community, city, country or the world. The winning LUCKY CHANGEMAKER will receive a cash grant to support the continuation or realization of the project.

Whether you may be an independent artist or collective who demonstrates artistic excellence and uses their practice as an innovative conduit for a social cause, we are looking for projects that showcase how art's social dimension, addressing cultural responsiveness and responsibility.

How can art connect local communities and social minorities? How can artists encourage under resourced communities to overcome barriers, to participate in creative process and create equitable access to culture? How can artists or art organisations create conversations and social change through art? How can we increase environmental awareness or promote social equality through the arts? These are the questions we pose to you!
